Louisa C. Moats, Ed.D.

Dr. Louisa Moats is the lead author of LANGUAGE!® Live, a blended literacy program for adolescent students reading below grade level. She is also the lead author of LETRS® professional development for literacy educators. Dr. Moats has authored books, journal articles, policy papers, and materials for professional development in the areas of reading, writing, and language. She received her M.A. from Peabody College of Vanderbilt and her Ed.D. from the Harvard Graduate School of Education.

Goals for This Session

- Review why many teachers are not confident
 - Preservice training
 - Breadth and depth of subject matter knowledge necessary to teach explicitly
- Outline the disciplinary knowledge necessary to be confident (and effective)
 - Knowledge of reading development; structure of language; assessment of individual differences
- How to create a confident (and effective) teacher of reading, spelling, and language

Is Teaching Experience the Answer?

- In study after study, teaching experience appears unrelated to or only somewhat related to knowledge of language structure or the processes of reading development
- Formal instruction to build disciplinary knowledge is required!

Disciplinary Knowledge is Not Obvious, Natural, or Intuitive

Cunningham et al. (2009) asked teachers how they would prefer to teach reading.

- “...it appears that a philosophical orientation towards literature-based instruction tends to be more exclusive of other instructional approaches”
- Teachers’ preferred practices do not conform to current research and policy recommendations for teaching first graders

'Philosophy' Can Get in the Way

- "...[first grade teachers'] philosophical framework about reading instruction was germane to the extent teachers learned the content of direct methods of reading instruction"
- Those with a "whole language" orientation were less responsive to PD in phonology, phonics, and spelling

(Brady et al., 2011)

Does Teacher Knowledge Matter?

- Link between teacher knowledge and student outcome has been demonstrated in a handful of studies, but these factors are moderated by implementation supported by coaching
 - McCutchen, Harry, Cunningham & Cox, 2002
 - McCutchen et al., 2002
 - Moats & Foorman, 2003
 - Carlisle & Berebitsky, 2011

Mentor Condition: Teachers Grouped by Ability to Conduct Systematic, Explicit Instruction

What Teachers Know Affects What They Do

- "...Teachers who performed well on phonics tasks [on the knowledge survey] prefer spending more time on explicit and systematic instructional practices and less time on unstructured literature activities"
- Prior knowledge [of language] plays a role in teachers' choice of instructional activities

-Cunningham et al.

Good Instructional Programs Do Not Supplant Teacher Training

- Students' gains were predicted by the interaction between teacher knowledge and amount of explicit decoding instruction students received
- Highly scripted core curricula "cannot replace the expert teaching of highly knowledgeable teachers"
- More code instruction by teachers with low levels of knowledge did not produce student gains

Piasta et al. (Scientific Studies of Reading, 2009)

LETRS Professional Development

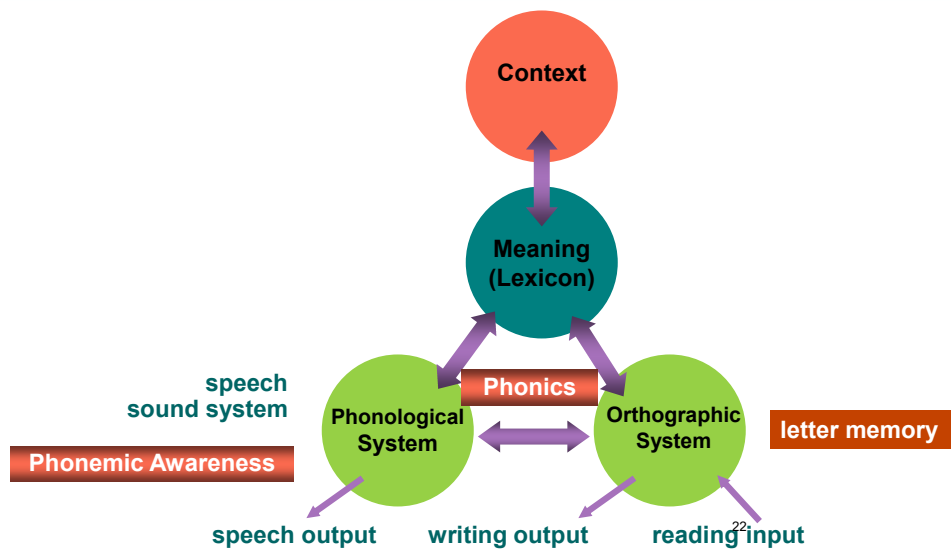

Emphasis on Teacher Knowledge

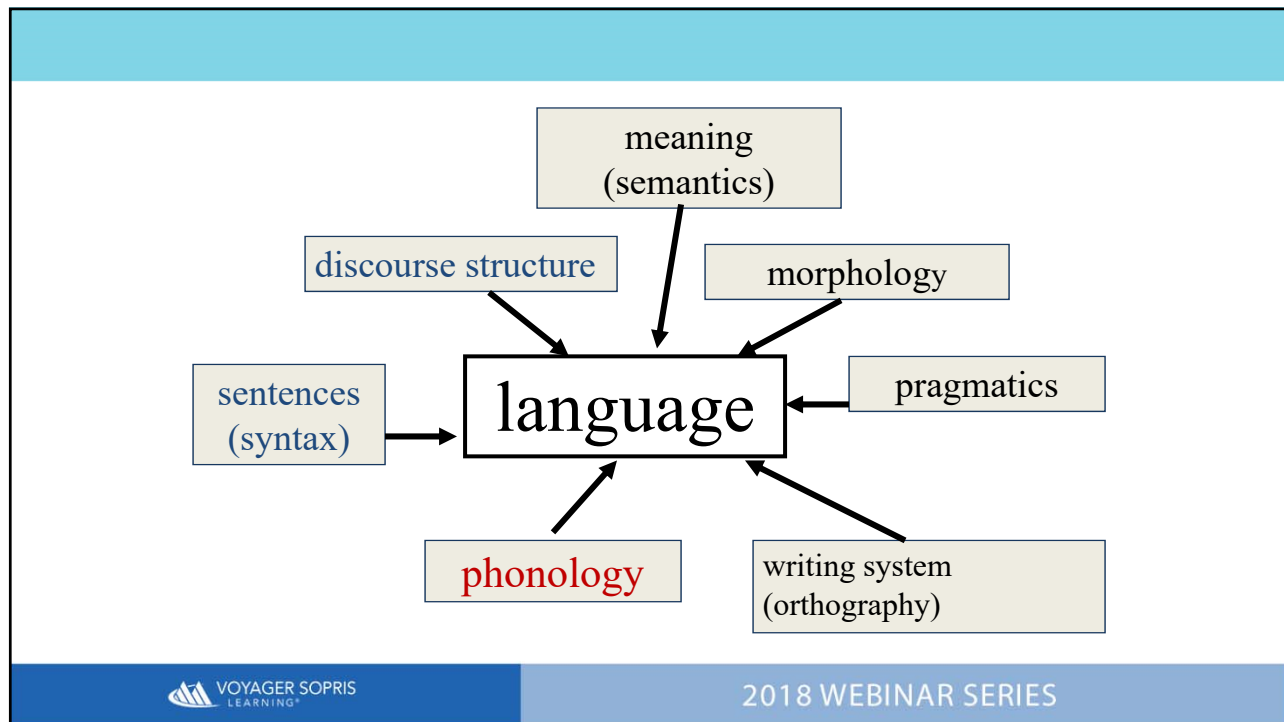

- how children learn to read
- common sources of reading problems and how to assess them
- how the various components of reading develop
- what kinds of instruction have been found to be effective
- how to implement lessons and activities

Historical Perspective: Teaching Certification

Excerpt from the Alpine County Board of Education
Written Examination for Prospective Teachers
Markleeville, CA: 1881, 1884, 1886

1. Name five pure Anglo-Saxon words, five prefixes, five suffixes, and define each
2. Analyze and define five words with Latin roots
3. Add two suffixes to each of the following words:
rebel, apprentice, rehearse, wise, act
4. Add two prefixes to each of the following: able, disposed, fold, take, fine

(from Anne Cunningham, Ph.D., U.C. Berkeley)

Current Reading Research: How We Know a Word (Perfetti)

Methodically Introducing New Words

Pronounce and read the word.

flexible

Examine the spelling.

flex – ible

Identify familiar parts (morphemes).

flex, to bend; -ible, an adjective suffix

Tell students what the new word means, using a student friendly definition.

“Flexible material can bend easily without breaking.”

Methodically Introducing New Words

Say more about the word. Use it several times.

The best gymnasts are very flexible; they can bend way over or do the splits.

Ask questions about the word's meaning.

Is hair flexible or brittle?

Elicit word use by students.

A healthy ankle can roll all around if it is _____.

My schedule can be adjusted; I'm _____.

Paperback books bend in your hands; they are _____.

Generalization of a Latin Root

Reading Comprehension Depends on Active Processing of...

- interpretation of words in context
- figurative language
- multiple meanings
- academic language formalities
- discourse structure
- phrase structure in sentences
- topic-specific terminology

Syntax: Why are These Sentences Challenging to Interpret?

- The white van was hit head-on by the motorcycle
- We had no reason to think that she was unstable
- This is a major problem
This is the major problem
- She hesitated, although it would have been better to proceed

Using Data: Selecting Priorities for Instruction

- Phonological and phoneme awareness
- Using phonics to decode/spell accurately
- Recognizing/writing “sight” words automatically
- Knowing what most words mean
- Constructing meaning; interpreting language; connecting the text with prior knowledge
- Monitoring comprehension and repairing miscomprehension if necessary

Determining Priorities

Student errors and skill surveys tell where to focus

Confusion of similar phonemes:

“f” for /v/ in “drive”

“g” for /ch/ in “beaches”

1.	bed	siup	dat	bed shp drive
2.	bap			bump
3.	wine			whea
4.	teran			train
5.	clost			claset
6.	cane			chase
7.	flot			float
8.	begs			beaches
9.	percego			preparing
10.	pare			papping
11.	cart			cattle

Teacher Preparedness

Who is Confident Teaching Reading and Spelling?

One who

- ✓ can explain words from many angles
- ✓ leads students to the meanings in text
- ✓ bases instructional decisions on data
- ✓ knows the best practices research supports
- ✓ uses every minute of every lesson

"By God, for a minute there it suddenly all made sense!"
